Art Unit: 2133

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

1. Claims 1-4 and 11-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Matsubara et al (6,493,271).

As per claims 1, 2, and 11-12, Matsubara et al disclose the invention substantially as claimed, comprising: a microcomputer to be used as a control device of a medium reading apparatus is such that writing data into and erasing data from the block of a prescribed area in nonvolatile Flash memory. If any writing into the prescribed area is needed, data included in the prescribed area will be erased and data is rewritten into the erased blocks.; wherein the prescribed area has a plurality of blocks, each of which has a plurality of units is inherent in the system of Matsubara. (See col. 11, line 33 to col. 12, line 10; col. 13, line 60 to col. 14, line 22 and col. 52, lines 15-17 and lines 42-43).

As per claims 3, and 4, the teaching of Matsubara et al had been discussed above. Matsubara et al further disclose wherein the control section writes data generated by the execution of a program stored in the nonvolatile memory into the prescribed area of the nonvolatile memory. (See col. 15, lines 5-35).

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. Claims 5-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Matsubara et al (6,493,271).

The teaching of Matsubara et al had been discussed above. Matsubara et al do not specifically disclose the data to be written into the prescribed area of the nonvolatile memory are information concerning the type of medium, concerning manufacturing fluctuations in the media drive means and read means, concerning characteristics of the medium obtained by accessing the medium, and data for use in checking the reliability of data. However, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to set the stored information data as the type of medium, the manufacturing fluctuations, characteristics of the medium or data for use in checking the reliability of data because it does not affect the storage of the nonvolatile memory.
